WITH A BULLET.

Suicide of Lieutenant John W. Danenhower.

Found Dead in His Quarters at the Annapolis Naval Academy—Fear of Court Martial Said to Have Prompted the Act. The Record of the Navigator of the Last Arctic Expedition.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 20.

Lieutenant John W. Danenhower, of Arctic fame, was discovered at 10 o'clock this morning dead in his quarters at the Naval Academy, with a bullet hole in his right temple. He was found lying on his rug in front of his fireplace, with a tag tied to his buttonhole, saying: "Send to my brother at Washington."

Deceased was 37 years of age and entered the naval service in 1866, from Illinois, in which State he was born. The lieutenant was on duty on board the United States steamer Vandalia when that vessel conveyed General Grant to Egypt, and in this way made the acquaintance and gained the high esteem and admiration of the general. So favorably was General Grant impressed that, when James Gordon Bennett proposed the Jeannette Arctic expedition, Grant strongly urged Lieutenant Danenhower as a fearless and capable officer for such service. Lieutenant Danenhower volunteered and was appointed as navigating officer of that expedition sailing in 1879 and passing with credit through the terrible hardships of that voyage and the loss of the Jeannette. Naval officers have conceded to Danenhower the credit for saving his party. Upon his return in 1882, with Melville as the only other surviving officer, Lieutenant Danenhower was an acute sufferer from eye trouble, the result of Arctic privations and exposure. When sufficiently recovered Danenhower was detailed to the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, as instructor and subsequently as assistant commandant, in which positions he was very popular with the cadets. Some days ago he went to Norfolk to superintend the fitting out of the practice ship Constellation, and during this service manifested such depression of spirits that several of his fellow officers believed his mind was unsettled. Yesterday he returned to the Naval Academy.

Before his Arctic expedition he was at one time confined in the asylum near this city. It is generally admitted that he must have been temporarily insane when he committed suicide. He had been very intimate with young Robert W. Gatewood, who recently committed suicide on the Carolina, and whom he saw in death. It is supposed that this death suggested the mode to him. The lieutenant's personal and domestic affairs are of the most happy character. A few years ago he married a daughter of State Senator Sloan, of Oswego, N. Y. His widow is left with two children.

FOR RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS

The Names of William E. Rogers, Isaac N. Baker and Austin Lathrop Sent In.

[Special to the Eagle.]

ALBANY, N. Y., April 20.

Senator Pierce this morning made a square test of the Republican majority's nerve in moving that the Senate go into open executive session for action on the nomination of Messrs. Armstrong and Buckbee. He charged that the majority had taken no action in caucus, and that it was high time that the Senate gave some consideration to the excellent names that had been sent in by the Governor during the week past. The minority, he said, were playing peanut politics. Mr. Pitts said that the resolution was an emanation from the Executive Chamber, and Mr. Kellogg attacked the Governor bitterly, styling him a "demagogue and a trickster. It is he who is playing peanut politics, said he. The Lieutenant Governor called him to order.

Mr. Pitts wanted to know by what right he did it. "You are only the presiding officer," he cried.

"I have been reminded of that before," said Mr. Jones.

"I hold that common courtesy toward the Governor deserves at least respectful mention."

Mr. Kellogg said he'd finished. Mr. Fassett abused the Governor and said he had sent private word to Senators that he did not want Mr. Rickard confirmed; he had withdrawn Arkell's name for like reasons. The Republicans fought the resolution on points of order, and then by a party vote refused to consider the resolutions.

It was a rare exhibition of political gymnastics.

The Governor at 2 o'clock this afternoon withdrew the names of Buckbee and Armstrong, for Railroad Commissioners, and named instead W. E. Rogers, the present incumbent, in place of John O'Donnell, and Isaac N. Baker in place of Rogers. Baker is at present superintendent of State prisons. He added to the list Austin Lathrop, of Corning, in Baker's place. He is a Democrat. The others are both Republicans.

A GENUINE CASE OF LEPROSY

Which is Interesting the Physicians of Louisville, Ky.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 20.

A special from Louisville, Ky., says: "Physicians are much interested over the discovery of a genuine case of leprosy in this city. The patient is John Hastings, who lives with his parents on Wilson street. He contracted the terrible disease in Honolulu about three years ago, and his entire body is covered with sickening eruptions peculiar to lepers. Hastings is 30 years of age and was born in this city. Being of a roving disposition, he left home about five years ago and went West. Finding himself in San Francisco and without money, he accepted a berth on the steamer City of Pekin, a trading vessel bound for the Sandwich Islands. When the steamer landed there Hastings was taken ill and grew so much worse that the officers had him moved to a house in Honolulu and arranged with an old man to care for him until his ship could return. It was then that the young man became affected with the awful disease. The City of Pekin returned, took aboard the sick sailor, and, when they were again in port, Hastings was sent home to his relatives. He succeeded in keeping from his parents the knowledge of the terrible disease, and it was not until last Sunday that they knew of their son's ailment. During the last two years he has been treating himself. Two of the best physicians in the city now have his case in hand."

...A Subject Which is of Some Interest to Brooklyn.

[Special to the Eagle.]

ALBANY, N. Y., April 20.

Senator John Smith, of Madison, talked an hour to the Senate to-day in the interest of the bill which is to give $150,000 of the State's money toward building two State elevators at Brooklyn, two at New York and two at Buffalo. He said the bill was a necessity, because the elevator men were in a combine, and were robbing the commerce of the State. The rate in New York for handling 1,000 bushels was 9.50 cents more than in Chicago. The cost for trimming 1,000 bushels in New York was $2 against 75 cents in Chicago, and $5 for elevating the same amount where $2 would pay it anywhere else. Sherman S. Rogers, of Buffalo, grain magnate, sat on the floor with Senator Sloan, and his presence irritated Mr. Smith, along with the noise made by Senators who were not interested. So in asking for order he said: "We have a rule to keep people from this floor save by unanimous consent, yet a gentleman sits here who has constantly annoyed me by his conversation with the Senator from the Twenty-first." Mr. Sloan said the gentleman hadn't talked to him about elevators. Mr. Rogers slipped into a side room. He is Commissioner of the Niagara Park and had a right on the floor.

Mr. Smith went on to show that state elevators could be built for $25,000 a piece and couldn't be bought up and closed up by "combines." Idle elevators gained a profit under the pool just as if running, and the people paid for it. The State had been engaged in a practically private enterprise on the canals for seventy years and didn't need to stop.

GRANT'S TRAP.

How a Brooklyn Girl Fell Into It.

The Boston Doctor Called it a Bagatelle, But it Proved to be a Costly Experience.

[Special to the Eagle.]

BOSTON, Mass., April 20.

Miss Annie M. Bulger, of 80 Poplar street, Brooklyn, and Miss Mary Sturgis, of West Twenty-third street, New York City, are both acquainted with Dr. Andrew Jackson Grant. About two years ago, according to the detectives, Dr. Grant was living at 1 Commerce street, New York, under the name of Dr. Prince.

The doctor put an advertisement in the New York papers stating that a gentleman of refinement was anxious to meet a young lady with a view to matrimony. He had no ulterior object, but he was lonesome. Both Miss Sturgis and Miss Bulger replied to the advertisement and the wily doctor at once began to pay attention to both of them, showing no signs of favoritism. One day in March, 1886, the doctor proposed to Miss Bulger, was accepted and she agreed to marry on the 27th of the month. He then went to New York, offered his hand to Miss Sturgis and engaged to marry her on the same day, but with the last of March came stormy weather and the doctor, claiming he was superstitious about being married on a rainy day, asked the unsuspecting women to postpone the respective ceremonies until April 1. Miss Sturgis agreed, but Miss Bulger seemed more anxious to be married and urged that the ceremony be performed March 31, to which the doctor finally agreed. He then induced Miss Burger to draw all her money, $680, from the bank and place it in his hands, he making the usual promise that he would at once start with his bride on a wedding trip to Australia. He also asked her to pack up her goods and send them to his apartments on Commerce street, which she did. On the day of the wedding and before Miss Bulger had had time to start for New York to become Dr. Prince's wife, she was astounded to hear the rattle of wheels at the door of her house in Brooklyn and to see all her trunks returned to her, most of them empty. She went as quietly as possible to Dr. Prince's lodgings, but he had flown, taking with him the money. How Miss Sturgis came out of the difficulty is not known. When Miss Bulger saw Dr. Grant at the Cambridge jail a few days ago she asked him if he would not give her a note that she might have some of her property returned. "You have very little to complain of," returned Grant. "What you have been through with is a mere bagatelle."

An EAGLE reporter called at No. 80 Poplar street this afternoon. The lady who responded to the reporter's questions was not at all inclined to be communicative.

AN EX-POLICE JUSTICE

Who Wants His Son to Contribute to His Support.

A case somewhat unusual in character came up before the Charities Department this morning. James Maxwell, formerly a Quaker city police justice and a gray haired man of 80, asks that his son, William Maxwell, of 114 Woodbine street, be compelled to contribute to his support. William is by his brothers described as being the financial manager of Dana & Co., of 20 Nassau street, New York, and is credited with receiving a salary of $2,500 a year.

The father has lived with one of his sons, Frank Maxwell, for the past six years. This son receives a salary of $1,000 a year as a salesman of cigars and liquors. He is very bitter against his brother William for his harshness to the father and declares he will push the case in the courts, if necessary, to bring him to terms. He is willing to pay his own share and that of another brother who is not able to contribute.

William Maxwell agreed to appear before the Commissioners this morning, but left the office before his case came up, with the remark that if he were prosecuted he would fight.

"We'll give that fellow all the fight he wants," said President Ray.

One of the brothers stated that when his father applied to William for assistance on one occasion he was told to "hire a bed or take a train out of town."

THE APOLLO CLUB CONCERT.

A Successful Affair at the Academy of Music Last Evening.

The Apollo Club gave its third private concert of the season last evening in the Academy of Music before a large audience. The programme commenced by the entire club singing "Sunday on the Ocean," by Heinze, which was followed by Miss Jessie Primer, who gave a fantasie on themes from Gounod's "Faust," arranged by Liszt, on the piano. The balance of the programme included a "Melodie," by Rubenstein, rendered by the orchestra; "Scena and Aria," from "Der Freischutz," Weber, by Mrs. E. Humphrey-Allen; "Night Song in the Woods," Schubert, Apollo Club; "The Farewell of Hiawatha," Arthur Foote, Apollo Club and orchestra, with incidental solos, by Mr. Heury S. Brown; soprano solo, three songs: A, "Sylvia," Schubert; b, "Thou'rt like unto a flower," Schumann: c, Widmung," Schumann, by Mrs. E. Humprey-Allen; "Serenade," G. W. Chadwick, Apollo Club; piano solo: A. "Impromptu," op. 36, Chopin; b, "Hungarian Dance," Brahms, Miss Jessie Primer; War song of the ancient Saxons, J. Reitz, Apollo Club and orchestra.

All of the numbers were well rendered, in every instance eliciting hearty applause and frequent recalls. Dudley Buck acted as accompanist, assisted by John Hyatt Brewer, accompanist, and Harry Rowe Shelley, organist.

TRANSACTING COUNTY BUSINESS

At the Meeting of the Charities Commissioners This Morning.

At the meeting of the Board of Charities Commissioners this morning, Dr. J. J. Shanks, of the Insane Asylum, was granted two weeks' leave of absence. The Board formally approved the bill now before the Legislature providing for the selection and purchase of farm lands and the erection of proper buildings for the accommodation of the 450 insane criminals in the several State institutions, including the 200 at Auburn. There are now twenty such convicts in the Kings County Penitentiary. The Brooklyn Assemblymen at Albany will be furnished with copies of the Board's approval of the bill. Senator George B. Sloan sent a letter saying he would have the item of board for State paupers, which had been omitted from the Supply bill, inserted therein. George Sohns, Jr., penitentiary druggist, petitioned to have his salary raised.

THE TIMES' ACCUSATIONS.

A Demand for the Proof of the Parnell Charges.

LONDON, April 20

Several Gladstone Liberals desire to have Parliament issue a summons to the editor of the Times calling him before the bar of the House of Commons to answer for breach of privilege in accusing Mr. Parnell and other members of the House of complicity in crime, or that Mr. Gladstone propose the appointment of a committee to examine into the Time's charges. The Parnellites have been consulted and their leaders oppose both propositions. If neither the Parnellites nor the Gladstonians take the initiative in moving for investigation, it is probable that an independent motion will be made which both the Government and Liberal union members will support.

The Law Against It to be Enforced.

An Appeal Made to the Mayor by Overworked Clerks—His Honor Directs the Police Commissioner to Stop the Business.

Mayor Whitney is engaged in an effort to enforce the law in regard to public traffic on Sundays. Complaints have been made to him personally and by letter that certain storekeepers as a rule keep their places of business open on Sunday, and that in so doing they work injustice to other storekeepers and are also guilty of a violation of the law. Among these complaints have been a large number of clerks in clothing and hat stores. Some of them have called upon the Mayor and stated their grievances and joined with others in the following appeal:

DEAR SIR—We, the writers, clerks and salesmen in the clothing and hat stores on Sands street, Bridge street, Flatbush avenue, etc., work from 7 A. M. till 9 and 10 P. M., and on Saturdays from 7 A. M. till 12 P. M., and Sundays from 7 A. M. till 1 P. M., making nine and one-half days' work a week at ten hours a day. There are about fifty or sixty of us, all Christian young men, who wish to spend our Sundays in a Christian manner and not in selling goods. As Mayor of the City of Brooklyn, we beseech you (a Christian gentleman and belonging to a prominent church in this city) to do something to better our position.

Yours respectfully, SUFFERERS.

P. S.—We would gladly give you our names, only we would most certainly be discharged and ourselves and families would suffer.

This letter was received by the Mayor a few days since, and after conferring with the Corporation Counsel his Honor this afternoon sent the following to the Police Commissioner:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, BROOKLYN, April 20, 1887.

Honorable Thomas Carroll, Commissioner of Police and Excise:

DEAR SIR—I have received complaints of various serious infractions of the so called "Sunday Law," which on the facts stated amount to regular and uninterrupted public selling and offering for sale of commodities forbidden by law. Section 267, of the the Penal Code regulates public traffic on Sunday. While this law stands, meeting such uniform and consistent obedience from our merchants and traders, a persistent violation thereof by individuals, here and there, must neither be winked at nor allowed. Respectfully, D. D. WHITNEY, Mayor.

The section of the Code referred to by the Mayor reads as follows:

All manner of public selling or offering for sale of any property upon Sunday is prohibited, except that articles of food may be sold and supplied at any time before 10 o'clock in the morning, and except also that meals may be sold to be eaten on the premises where sold, or served elsewhere by caterers; and prepared tobacco in places other than where spirituous or malt liquors or wines are kept or offered for sale, and fruit, confectionery, newspapers, drugs, medicines and surgical appliances may be sold in a quiet and orderly manner at any time of the day.

SATURATED WITH BLOOD.

A Hungarian Tailor Who is Supposed to Have Murdered His Wife.

Adolph Reiche, 56 years old, who was arrested last night for the murder of his wife, Lena, 41 years old, by cutting her throat, on the second floor of the tenement, 144 Norfolk street, New York, was taken to Essex Market Court to-day by Captain Allaire and Officer Reap. Samuel Grass, his wife's cousin, who was taken into custody at the same time, was also arraigned. Reiche is a Hungarian tailor. He preserved an unbroken silence. Grass made an informal statement to the effect that trouble prevailed between Reiche and his wife for some time past, and owing to her distrust of him she sent her bank book to a friend for safe keeping. Grass came home at 7 o'clock and went out again to peddle. He returned at 11:30 o'clock and went into a saloon next door to get a glass of beer. While there he heard a noise like a scuffle in Reiche's rooms. Some persons suggested that he go up and ascertain the cause. On doing so Grass heard the moaning of the unfortunate woman. He ran to the Eldridge street Station House and asked to have an ambulance sent for. Captain Allaire promptly came around to 144 Norfolk street himself, but when they went upstairs the body of Mrs. Reisch was cold and life was extinct. Captain Allaire also made an informal statement of the circumstances under which he arrested Reiche and Grass, after finding that the woman was dead. Reiche was out at the time, but when he returned to the house he was immediately placed in custody. He professed ignorance of the crime. Captain Allaire found his underclothing saturated with blood. The prisoners were remanded to enable Captain Allaire to produce evidence.

FINED FIFTY DOLLARS.

The Clifford Family Again Before the Courts.

The Clifford family appeared in Justice Massey's Court this morning in the trial of the sixteenth case in which its members have figured. This time Mrs. Clifford was charged with having assaulted Constable Phillips with a bar of iron or a piece of iron pipe, when he was in the act of removing some goods from her stable, April 12, under the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage. Mr. Phillips and his witnesses said that Mrs. Clifford struck the constable on the head, face, hands and arms with the pipe, then threw stones and sticks into the stable and finally drew a revolver, with which she threatened to shoot any man who dared lay a hand on any of the goods. Mrs. Clifford swore to substantially the same facts, except that she put the boot upon the other foot and charged the constable with assaulting her in exactly the manner he described, winding up with drawing a revolver. The case was tried before a jury and occupied almost the entire morning session of the court. A verdict of guilty was rendered and Mrs. Clifford was fined $50.

DID HE CHLOROFORM HER?

Mrs. Munro's Allegation in Her $5,000 Damage Suit.

This morning, in the County Court, before Judge Van Wyck and a jury, the case of Elizabeth Munro as administratrix against Henry Emmons was called for trial. Mrs. Munro seeks to recover $5,000 damages from Mr. Emmons, because, as she alleges, her husband's death was caused by Emmons pulling him out of a sick bed in October, 1881, in order that he might sign some papers by which Mrs. Munro was deprived of her proper share in her husband's estate. Mrs. Munro alleges that on the evening preceding her husband's death Emmons visited the house as a pretended watcher, and, after persuading her to lie down, chloroformed her. When she recovered consciousness she found Emmons talking angrily to her husband while he held him standing on the floor. Her husband died the following morning. The story has already been told in detail in the EAGLE. The defense is a general denial.

AS SOBER AS A JUDGE.

It Doesn't Pay to Say So to a Judge.

A few days ago Policeman Friel, of the Ninth Precinct, while patroling his post in the neighborhood of DeKalb and Tompkins avenues, heard the rap of a club in the hands of some one evidently calling for assistance. He discovered James Johnston, a night watchman, in the act of again tapping the sidewalk. Johnston was intoxicated and Friel "took him in." The former denied the charge before Justice Kenna next day, and the trial was set down for this morning. When Friel had told his story, the defendant took the stand in his own behalf.

"Were you drunk when arrested," asked Justice Kenna.

"No, sir. I was as sober as a judge," replied Johnston. Then finding that his answer was not as it should have been, he added, "I was as sober as any one."

He was fined $5.

THE STREET CLEANING QUESTION.

The Board of Estimate will meet on Friday morning for the purpose of fixing an amount to be taken from the Revenue fund for use with the regular street cleaning appropriation for the current year. This appropriation is $160,000, and it is supposed that the Board will set aside from its Revenue fund an amount sufficient to make up the total of the lowest bid for 1887, namely, $280,000. Messrs. Cranford & Valentine are the lowest bidders. The contract will run for three years and ample provision will be made for it from year to year by the Board of Estimate. The removal of ashes is included.

AWARDING A WATER CONTRACT.

The Trustees of the Village of Jamaica met last evening and awarded John Lockwood a contract for supplying the village with water for fire and domestic purposes. The village is to be provided with 100 fire hydrants at an annual expense of $2,000. The company is to lay six miles of water mains and establish a pumping station and reservoir. The cost to private consumers is to be the same as the rate of the City of Brooklyn.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Thomas Ryan, 33 years of age, was burned to death at his residence, 201 Ninth street, at 10 o'clock this morning. Ryan was intoxicated and sat down by a hot stove. He went to sleep and fell on the stove. There he was found almost dead by a member of the family. An ambulance was sent for, but the man was dead before it arrived. The Coroner was notified.

FAIR FIGHTERS

Who Were Not Governed by Prize Ring Rules.

It Was a Well Contested Combat and Judge Massey Will Have to be the Umpire at the Sequel.

The friends of Miss Ellen Roach and Miss Teresa O'Connor, may rest easy in the conviction that each of those charming young ladies in the event of the demise of the other, will take particular care to have the grave kept green, and will sit on it, if necessary, in order to guard against any unexpected return from it. This state of affairs has been precipitated by a mutual encounter between the young ladies last evening, in the hallway of the tenement, 3 State street, wherein they both reside. A blue eyed, rosy cheeked young man is described as being at the bottom of the trouble.

When two truthful and good looking girls have a serious difference it is a matter of extreme difficulty to get a detailed account of the fight, by rounds, and in this case posterity must depend, for its record, on the statements made by the participants to Justice Massey, before whom counter warrants for assault have been obtained. Teresa says it was a rough and tumble, catch as catch can, bang wherever you can, sort of a scramble, in which each got in her fine work about an equal number of times. In other words, Teresa claims that it was a draw. Ellen, on the other hand, says it was to a finish and that Teresa won the belt. She says Miss O'Connor dragged her up and down stairs by her hair and almost eradicated it in large spots, abusing her in every possible manner. The warrants will be served this afternoon, and Teresa and Ellen will ventilate their grievances in court to-morrow morning.

The Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge, F. and A. M.

Notices have been sent out of the holding on June 7 of the annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New York, in Masonic Hall, corner of Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue, New York City. The different committees will meet in the hall on the Thursday preceding, to consider all propositions, questions or matters presented by the Grand Master for their consideration, or on file with the Grand Secretary. Lodges which have any propositions to make must file them with the Grand Secretary within ten days after receiving their notices of the assembling of the annual communication. Three amendments to the constitution and statutes have been proposed. The first is to amend section 53, article 11, of the constitution by adding after the word member in the twenty-second line, the words, "Up to the close of the present year." The second is to amend section 16, article 7 of the statutes, by providing that any lodge may enact a by law to exempt any member from the payment of dues, other than to the Grand Lodge, on condition that he pay into the treasury of such lodge a sum to be specified by the by law, but in no case is it to be less than the amount of the annual dues for fifteen years. The third proposition is to add "And been elected," after the word membership in the fourth line of section 45, article 23. Each member of the Grand Lodge appears therein in his proper jewel and clothing.

THROWN DOWN STAIRS

And Then Kicked and Beaten by an Elevated Road Agent.

Thomas J. Hughes, of One Hundred and Thirtieth street and Third avenue, New York, appeared in the Yorkville Court this morning with a terribly bruised and cut head. He was both prisoner and complainant. He purchased a ticket at the Seventy-sixth street station of the Third avenue Elevated Railroad early this morning. The ticket agent, Frank Whitman, saw that Hughes had been drinking and refused to let him ride uptown. Hughes persisted and Whitman threw him down the station steps and kicked him about the head when he reached the bottom. Whitman denied that he had assaulted Hughes, but he was held by Justice White to answer. Hughes was fined $10 for being intoxicated.

DOES NOT WANT TO DIE.

A Would be Suicide Discharged by Justice Kenna.

When the case against Henry Nold, of 253 Floyd street, who was arrested on the 1st instant by Detective Brady for attempting to take his own life by swallowing a dose of Rough on Rats, was called by Justice Kenna to-day, the prisoner walked meekly to the bar. The officer stated that he had no proof against the accused and that the prisoner's wife would not appear against her husband. Justice Kenna was reluctant to discharge Nold, and asked:

"Have you any inclination now to take your life?"

"Was is dot?" said the prisoner.

"Do you want to die?" remarked Justice Kenna, trying to make Nold understand.

"Not so long like I live," came the answer quickly.

He was discharged.

VAN DOLEN PLEADS GUILTY.

The Evidence Against the Former Real Estate Agent Conclusive.

Thomas Rhind and John C. Oswald, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of grand larceny in the second degree, withdrew their pleas this morning in the Court of Sessions and pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the third degree. Frank Lynch, indicted on a similar charge, also pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the third degree. Garrett W. Van Dolen, formerly a prosperous real estate agent, the story of whose downfall has been published in the EAGLE, pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery in the third degree.

The prisoners were then remanded for sentence.

A DUEL WITH BUTCHERS' KNIVES.

Frank Rello and Cæsar Marazo had a quarrel in the house, 47 Crosby street, New York, last evening, which ended in a duel with butcher knives. The police arrived in time to prevent murder. They found Rello bleeding from a gash in his left shoulder and a deep incised wound in the right thigh. He was taken to the hospital. Justice Duffy held Marazo to await the result of injuries inflicted on Rello.

AN UNKNOWN MAN DYING.

Last evening an unknown man was found in an unconscious condition on the South Central Pier, Atlantic Dock. He was taken to St. Peter's Hospital, where the doctor said he was suffering from a congestive chill. At 8 o'clock this morning he was still unconscious. He will probably die. All that is known of him is that he worked on a coal boat in Atlantic Basin.

SOME MINOR ACCIDENTS.

Michael D. Cantillon, of 779 Hicks street, had his foot crushed by a piece of iron, at Beard's Stores yesterday.

William Birchell, of 49 Douglass street, a painter by occupation, fell from a scaffold in Rapelyea street yesterday, and fractured the drum of his right ear.

A pan of hot ashes set fire to Figge & Bros.' stable floor, in Pacific street, last night. The flames were extinguished promptly.

THE STRIKING CARPENTERS.

The Executive Committee of the carpenters on strike state that they are losing no ground. There are fifty-one men out. The master carpenters are still active in their endeavors to induce the bosses who are outside their organization to join them and inaugurate a general lockout of the men to whom they are paying the price. It is rumored that the bosses' organization will dissolve to-night.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

Yesterday afternoon a 3 year old son of William Barthel, of West Deer Park, was allowed to go into the woods to play. That was the last seen of him. Mr. Barthel and his neighbors searched all night for the boy, and this morning the news of his disappearance was telegraphed to neighboring villages.

THE COMPLAINANT DID NOT APPEAR.

The Condition of the Rev. Samuel T. Spear.

Affected by the Sudden Death of His Son, but Not Dangerously Ill—Recalling the Trial of the Tabernacle Pastor.

The announcement that Rev. Samuel T. Spear is lying at death's door is utterly without foundation. The Rev. Dr. Spear, who is one of the oldest members of the Brooklyn Presbytery, and who gained fame as the counsel for the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage during the notable ecclesiastical trial, has, of course, been affected by the sudden death of his last surviving son, but his condition is not serious and no danger is feared. His son, William H., expired from pneumonia early yesterday morning. He had been chief clerk in the Park Department for the past twenty years, but resigned last Summer. Within two years every member of Rev. Mr. Spear's family has passed away. His wife, to whom he had been married fifty-two years, died two years ago and his daughter, Mrs. John P. Schrymser, died in last November. His son's wife is seriously prostrated by her husband's death. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the residence of the family, 126 Lincoln place, near Sixth avenue.

Next to the distinguished defendant, and not much overshadowed even by the Tabernacle pastor himself, Dr. Spear was the most characteristic figure at the trial. In perfect antithesis to Dr. Van Dyke, the champion of the foes of Dr. Talmage, the two men represented extremes of a most decided character. Van Dyke, short, stout, sonorous and deliberate, was cautious, polished and conciliating; Spear, tall, slender, excitable and nervous, was alert, defiant, aggressive and exasperating. He reveled in the intricacies of ecclesiastical law, cared for no debate that was not colored with, perhaps, a little venom as well as temper, and was never so thoroughly aroused as when the tide of battle seemed to be going against him and nothing but a brilliant charge could save the day. When the leaders in this long and interesting fight measured their sacred sabers, metaphorical blood was certain to flow with freedom, and the large audiences, taking sides according to their sympathies, could never be prevented from indulging in demonstrations much more congenial to a theatre than a church.

There were times when Dr. Spear was a striking spectacle; when all his energies were aroused, and when in the heat and fury of discussion his clerical instincts were subordinated altogether; when the forensic tendencies of the man took complete possession of him. It was with difficulty that he restrained himself from indulging in personalities. He made the cause of the accused so thoroughly his own, that an uniformed spectator would have been justified in supposing that the counsel himself was on trial, and that he was fighting heroically against overwhelming numbers. A shower of cold and glittering shafts would precede the general engagement. They were usually aimed at the "other side" as a whole. They formed, however, merely the basis of a sort of preliminary skirmish, with a few stray, sarcastic shots, just to make matters lively. Then the heavy artillery would come into play, with scathing denunciation as the ammunition. The doctor's indignant thunderings must still be echoing in the ears of some of those who listened to the cannonading. When the smoke of the heavy ordnance had floated off, and the dauntless artilleryman had taken breath, a thirst for single combat invariably asserted itself. At this juncture Dr. Van Dyke's turn invariably came. A fierce challenge, a somewhat reluctant and dignified acceptance, a swift and ugly passage at arms, and then the waters of the trial would subside, leaving a little foam to tell where the waves had been surging with a giant sweep and whitened crests.

Since figuring in this memorable episode in the Tabernacle pastor's history little has been seen of Dr. Spear, and for several years he has been almost entirely withdrawn from public observation. His mind, however, is vigorous and he finds hearty consolation in his solitude by his communion with books.

AFFAIRS AT THE NAVY YARD.

Secretary Whitney Issues an Order to the Bureau Chiefs.

General orders to the chiefs of bureaus have been issued by the Secretary of the Navy, among the more important of which is the following:

The chiefs of bureaus will have prepared for my approval, by the 30th of April, schedules of such materials and supplies as they think will be required in their respective departments for the forthcoming year.

The Navy Yard pay office, which used to be on State street, New York, has been removed to rooms 109 and 111 in the Stewart building, New York.

John Stevenson, pay director and Navy Yard storekeeper, is at present in Washington, D. C.

A court martial is being held to-day on board the Atlantic as to Fireman Mills, who deserted the ship some time ago to avoid the trouble of the trial trip.

Master boat builder Samuel H. Tompkins went some time ago clam fishing up on the Harlem River. Soon after he noticed a painful swelling on his right foot. He consulted a surgeon, who, opening the swelling found a small clam in the foot.

Lieutenant Commander P. Fahrenhold arrived this morning by the Sound steamer from Boston with 147 men from the receiving ship Wabash, who are to form part of the crew of the Trenton.

The alterations of the Dispatch, which is lying at the Yard, are to be pushed forward as quickly as possible at a cost not exceeding $441.

RAPIDLY PUSHING ITS WORK.

The Union Elevated Railroad Company Losing Little Time.

Work on Hudson avenue, between Fulton street and Park avenue, has been commenced by the Union Elevated Railroad Company. There are about sixty men at work on that section. All of the foundations have been placed on Flatbush avenue and the iron work will be put up there as fast as possible. The road will be probably in operation next Fall. It is evidently the intention of the Union Elevated Railroad Company to have their line in operation as far as the Long Island Railroad depot some time during the Summer, to take in as much as possible of the Summer traffic and to get ahead of the Kings County Elevated Railroad Company, which to all appearances will find their way completely barred by the Union Elevated Railroad crossings.

WANTS TO BE FAIR.

Colonel Culyer Withdraws His Demand for Dr. Leighton's Resignation.

Colonel Culyer, a member of the committee of the Central Grammar School, sent a letter to-day to Postmaster Hendrix, the chairman of the committee, withdrawing his consent to the resolution requesting the resignation of Dr. Leighton, principal of the school.

Mr. Hendrix refused to make the letter public. Colonel Culyer said that his motive was to obviate any inconsiderate action on his part. He doesn't know enough about the case to pronounce judgement, and he took this step to place himself in a fair attitude both toward the committee and Dr. Leighton.

SCHOLARS LOYAL TO DR. LEIGHTON.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

From the EAGLE of the 19th inst., I see that only seventy of the pupils of the Central School are represented as being loyal to Dr. Leighton. I am sorry that this mistake has been made. It is probably due to my omitting to hand you the names of all the pupils who signed the petition. The time was so limited that only one fourth of the school could be canvassed, of this two hundred, a large majority, signed. Will you kindly rectify the mistake as soon as possible, and oblige,

A CENTRAL SCHOOL GIRL, 1,164 Pacific street,
BROOKLYN, April 20, 1887.

INVETERATE MORPHINE EATER.

Emily Hedyen, a middle aged married woman, of 49 Varet street, was arraigned for the second time in a year before Justice Naeher this morning for eating morphine in large quantities. On the first occasion she was committed for six months, but her imprisonment did not seem to cure her of the habit. She was again committed to-day. Her husband was a rich Dresden merchant. She is well educated.

THE MASTERTON WILL CASE.

The hearing in the contest over the will of John H. Masterton was continued in the Surrogate's Court to-day. The evidence for the proponent, Mrs. Augusta Masterton, was continued. Edward G. Williams, of 141 St. Marks avenue, was examined. The drift of his evidence showed that Masterton was a moral man and observed all the amenities of a reputable mode of life.

KNIGHT AGAINST KNIGHT.

No settlement has yet been arrived at between District No. 126, K. of L., representing the employes in Higgins' carpet factory, on Forty-third street, New York, and District No. 49; nor does there seem any prospect of an amicable arrangement. The men who still cling to No. 49 remain out and their places are being slowly filled by the firm.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Rev. T. T. B. Reid, colored, of Jamaica, was stricken with paralysis on Tuesday evening. The stroke was slight, and to-day he was able to sit up. He has had a hard time of it in his present charge, suffering at times for the necessaries of life, but latterly he has received relief from his white brethren.

...Poles Unless Absolutely Necessary.

The Fire Department authorities having announced it as their intention to replace the telephone poles which were removed from Classon avenue, by order of the City Court, with poles of the same size and height, to be used solely for the purposes of the fire and police telegraph systems, Mayor Whitney to-day had a talk with Commissioner Ennis, with the view of ascertaining whether or not it was absolutely necessary that this should be done. The Mayor said that unless it could be demonstrated to him that the requirements of the service necessitated the erection of poles there, he should oppose it. He did not care for the abuse and misrepresentation to which he had been subjected by Mr. Haviland, but he did desire to respect the sentiments of property owners as far as practicable, and he did not see why, if other arrangements could be made, the poles should be put up again. Of course, if the fire authorities shall show that the erection of poles and wires in the part of the avenue in question was necessary for the protection of life and property in the maintenance of the fire alarm system, he did not see how he could properly interfere. What he especially wished was to avoid any apparent resentment of the action taken by the property owners which had resulted in the removal of the poles erected by the telephone company under a permit issued to the Fire Department in accordance with an agreement of several years' standing.

Commissioner Ennis attended at the Mayor's office with Mr. P. L. Watson, the Superintendent of the fire telegraph. Corporation Counsel Jenks was also present. Commissioner Ennis told the Mayor that it was necessary to have the poles on Classon avenue. This is the position which Ennis has held from the start. Mayor Whitney said he desired to visit the location and make an examination of it before arriving at a decision in the matter. So it was arranged that in company with Mr. Jenks and the Commissioner, he should go out there this afternoon.

HIS MIND GONE.

Why Bernard Mooney Will Not be Tried.

The Man Who Shot William Quinlan Broods Over His Troubles and Becomes Insane.

On the 9th of January last Bernard Mooney, a Hamilton avenue saloon keeper, quarreled with his barkeeper, William Quinlan. During a scuffle that followed Mooney fired at Quinlan. He said he did not shoot to hit him, but merely wanted to frighten him. Unfortunately the ball buried itself in Quinlan's left breast, just over his heart. He was taken to the Long Island College Hospital, where he still lies, but yet far from out of danger. There have been many adjournments of the case since then. It was to come up in Justice Massey's Court to-day, but from word received by his Honor this morning it is scarcely possible that it will ever be tried. The county physicians sent a certificate in this morning to the effect that Mooney had so brooded over the unfortunate affair that his reason had become entirely dethroned and he was a raving maniac. Mr. Mooney was a well to do business man, of peaceable character and disposition. He never was in trouble before and was not thought by his friends to be capable of deliberately shooting a man. If he fired the shot as he says, and as all his friends believe, with no intention of hitting Quinlan, he has paid dearly for the act. The physicians doubt whether his reason can ever be restored. He will be committed to the asylum today or to-morrow.

OBITUARY.

Colonel Edward B. Lansing.

Colonel Edward B. Lansing died last night at his residence, 166 Washington Park. He had been ailing for several days, but was not thought to be seriously ill until within the last few hours. It is understood that heart disease was the cause of death. He was 58 years old. Colonel Lansing was the son of Rev. Dr. D. C. Lansing, who was for many years the pastor of the Clinton avenue Congregational Church, preceding there the late Rev. Dr. Buddington. Subsequently he removed to Auburn, N. Y. When the civil war broke out young Lansing was appointed first lieutenant and adjutant in the Seventy-fifth New York Volunteers, and served for some time. He studied law, and in 1869 returned to Brooklyn and entered upon the practice of his profession in this city. Shortly after locating here he was elected Department Commander of the Grand Army. He took an active interest in political matters, and in 1872 was prominent in the Liberal Republican movement. In 1874 he was appointed Chief Clerk in the Police Department, and held the position for several years. In the Presidential campaign of 1876 he was very active, speaking frequently and to large audiences in every part of the city. As a stump speaker Colonel Lansing was forcible and eloquent. Of late years he has devoted himself to his profession, and had built up a large and lucrative practice. Colonel Lansing was twice married, his second wife surviving him. He leaves a son, who is one of the proprietors of the Clarendon Hotel.

TWO HOURS OF BITTER SPEAKING,

Then Two G. A. R. Commanders Settled Their Differences on the Floor.

A week ago the drum and cadet corps of Mansfield Post, G. A. R., gave an entertainment and reception. The name of Commander Henry B. Davis had been omitted entirely from the programme and he felt slighted. He accused Past Commander Martin Short of having purposely made the omission in order to insult him. Hot words ensued and the two parted in anger. Last night there was a crowded meeting of the Post, as it had become known that the two commanders would argue their differences. They were not disappointed, and for over two hours speeches, tinged more or less with bitterness, were indulged in. Finally they advanced toward each other. When they reached the center of the room they—shook hands.

A LEAKING GAS MAIN.

It Causes Grave Danger in Two Great Tenements.

The gas main burst between the two tall tenements, 1,621 and 1,624 Second avenue, New York, and the gas leaked into both the houses while most of the tenants were all in bed last night.

Mrs. Griffin, the wife of Roundsman Griffin of the Eighty-eighth street police squad sent her twelve year old son William into the cellar with a pail of ashes. He ignited a match and a great explosion followed. The boy was badly burned about the face and hands. Most of the tenants were stifled into insensibility and had to be carried out of the house by neighbors. All escaped with their lives.

MRS. MURPHY WAS LATE

And the Court Gave Her a Lecture on Punctuality.

Mrs. Mary Murphy of 24 Heyward street, was to have appeared in Justice Nacher's Court this morning to answer a charge of assault made by Mrs. Mary Hughes who resides in the same tenement. Mrs. Murphy, Officer Sullivan stated, pulled Mrs. Hughes' hair out, and pummeled her face. The defendant did not put in an appearance until nearly 10 o'clock, and when asked for an explanation she replied, "Musha, me clock is shlow." "You must be always punctual in this life, Mary," said the Court. "I have a mind to lock you up for not having been here earlier. You can go but be here at 9 o'clock sharp, Saturday morning."

THE WET DAY TIME TABLE.

On Monday last the so called "wet day time table" was put into operation by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company. The new arrangement, which had been recently agreed upon between the Executive Board of District Assembly 75 and President Lewis, of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, means simply that a number of cars will be taken off on inclement days during hours when travel is light. The drivers and conductors are to receive full pay—that is, for straight runs $2 and $1.56 for trippers.

CHARGED WITH A SERIOUS OFFENSE.

A man named Welstead was arrested in Far Rockaway this morning on the charge of brutally assaulting Bridget Kane, 15 years old. Welstead had an accomplice who has not been apprehended. Miss Kane says she was proceeding along the highway at 8 o'clock last evening when the two men seized her and dragged her into an old barn. At the time the girl's sister was looking for her, and hearing cries she hastened to the barn in time to rescue Bridget.

TO LOOK OUT FOR BOB VEAL.

Mr. Lewis Balch, Secretary of the State Board of Health, has notified health officers throughout the State to be on the lookout for bob veal, which is being shipped from the country to the larger cities to be used as "sausage meat," "canned chicken," etc. The order directs the immediate seizure of all such contraband meat.

MISS BALL WANTS HER TRUNK.

Miss Annie Ball applied to Clerk Jonas M. Farrington, of Justice Rhinehart's court, this morning, for advice as to how she should proceed to obtain possession of her trunk, which is detained by her ex-boarding mistress, Mrs. Osborn, of 99 South Fourth street, to whom she admitted being indebted for a few weeks' board. As her good clothes are in the trunk she is anxious to get it. She was told the proper step to take.

HOWARD WAS NOT THERE.

Charles N. Howard, a merchant, living at 13 South Portland avenue, caused the arrest of Bertha Hall, a colored woman, who had been employed by him as a domestic. He alleged that she had stolen a $1 silk handkerchief, but when the case was called this morning he did not appear. The prisoner was discharged and was advised to sue Howard for false imprisonment.

TO BE NO KID GLOVE AFFAIR.

The case of the Woman Suffragists will be presented to the authorities of the State at a meeting in Masonic Hall, New York, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Mrs. Sophronia Twichell, who has lost none of her aggression and defiance, says "this is to be no kid glove affair. We propose to present hard facts."

MAY EFFECT A SETTLEMENT.

Which Swept the Deck of the Ship St. John.

Deluged by Waves of Mountain Height. Henry Brown's Miraculous Escape—A Story that Reads Like a Nautical Romance.

Captain Sayles of Thomaston, Me., commanding the ship St. John of that port, arrived in the harbor to-day with his vessel and eighteen men all safe, after the most remarkable experience they ever passed through in all their lives. At 7 o'clock on the morning of Monday, April 11, they were 800 miles from Brooklyn bound in from Liverpool, driving along on the port tack under mizzen lower topsails, spanker, main topsail, main upper topsail, foretopsail and jib. A heavy gale was blowing at the time and the gaskets of the main royal yard were loosened. Henry Brown, one of the sailors was sent aloft to secure the sail, and had worked his way in well towards the mast when something happened that nearly cost him his life.

Four great waves rose up like walls about the ship and came down on her from all sides. Captain Sayles thinks the effect was produced by a tidal wave. Others on the ship are of the opinion that a white squall caught her. A wall of water that reached as high as the foreyard came pouring over the bow, and before the ship could recover another wave equally high swept over the stern and tore along her deck. The captain and all on deck had to brace themselves and cling to the rigging or they would have gone overboard. Immediately afterward a great wave struck the starboard side and carried the vessel on her beam ends. The cargo of salt in bags was well stowed or that would have been the last of the St. John. As the vessel lay on her beam ends the last great wave struck her on the port side and righted her with a force that made her timbers groan. She rose to a fearful height and dived down headforemost again with a jerk that snapped the main topmast off at the cap. As that fell it broke the mizzen royal mast, which was connected with it by braces and stays, off short and the weight of the wreck also carried away the fore royal and top gallant yards, which fell on end on the top gallant forecastle. The vessel also carried away her spanker boom.

By what seems almost a miracle no one was hurt. Brown, who was on the main royal yard, sixty-five feet above the deck, was pitched clear over the yard, but seized the main royal stay with a death grip. As the wreck fell he swung far out over the port side and into the waves, but the vessel righted on her keel just at that time and he swung in board again and alighted just aft of the deck houses. The deck was full of water up to the rail and the water broke Brown's fall. He was almost unhurt and was able to be at work again the next day.

Luckily the wreck from aloft fell on the deck, instead of dragging alongside. The crew spent the rest of the day in clearing away, the ship proceeding under staysails.

SPECIAL TERM—Judge Osborne—Nos. 120, Bougards vs. Hermans.

COMPLAINTS OF THREE PATRIARCHS.

They Pour Their Grievances Into the Charities Commissioners' Ears.

The Charities Commissioners had their hands full to-day in disposing of numerous cases which came before them for judgment. J. Pereira, a man of 70 years, wanted support from his four sons. He is a crank and is separated from his wife. Two of the sons live at 131 North Portland avenue and two in Jersey City. They decided to pay 50 cents each per week for their father's board. John Stoddard, 61 years of age, stated he had three sons, one a painter on Fulton avenue, near the car stables, one in the Fire Department and one on the police force. He does not live with his wife and the sons refuse him support on account of his alleged disgraceful conduct toward the mother. His case is referred to the counsel of the Board.

James Quigley, a man of 60 years, complained against his son, James Quigley, Jr., a storekeeper in the employ of the Government, because of his dissatisfaction with the son's conduct in supporting his aged blind mother in law at his house, 11 Bolivar street, where he has also kept his father for a long time. It is alleged that the old man, failing in his attempt to have the mother in law ejected, last Sunday had notices defamatory of his son's character posted around the neighborhood. He now asks that the son be compelled to support him. Counsel will take charge of the case.

A GASTRONOMIC FEAT.

Seven Steaks, Some Potatoes, Eight Eggs and a Cup of Coffee.

Among the bootblacks who shed luster on the pedal coverings of local politicians is an attenuated colored youth whose prowess as a shiner is excelled by his abilities as a gastronome. Yesterday he made a wager with a cook in a neighboring restaurant that he could eat seven steaks and a small measure of potatoes at a sitting.

"Not if I select and cook the steaks," said the cook.

"Yes, you can choose 'e grub and cook it, too; and by golly I can eat um," said the darkey.

The cook, thinking he had a sure thing, selected several of the toughest steaks that ever were served and subjected them to a process of frying which was calculated to add to their toughness. The darkey sat down to the spread, surrounded by his backers and the friends of the cook. He finished the meal in fifteen minutes and took as his dessert eight eggs and a cup of coffee, which the discomfited cook made him pay for out of the money he won.

A DISCREET AND JUST VERDICT.

Judge Bartlett's Tribute to a Circuit Court Jury.

The suit of Rudolph Schmidt against the Broadway Railroad Company was concluded in the Circuit Court this morning, the jury returning a verdict for the plaintiff for $3,000. The action was to recover damages for injuries received. On the night of August 10, 1884, a car on the defendant's road, at Van Sinderen avenue and Broadway, was struck by a train on the Long Island Railroad. The car was smashed, one man killed, the driver hurt and the plaintiff, Schmidt, who was one of the passengers, had two ribs broken. It was claimed that some subsequent physical trouble resulted from the injuries received. When counsel for the defense moved for a stay, pending an appeal, Judge Bartlett said he would grant the stay for thirty days, but he thought the verdict was very discreet and just. Counsel took the stay, however, in spite of this cold comfort. For the plaintiff, Zimmerman & Jacobs; for the defense, Moore, Low & Wallace.

FOR THE WESTERN SOLDIERS' HOME.

A Pleasant Entertainment Given in Plymouth Church Sunday School.

An entertainment under the auspices of the Plymouth Young People's Association was given last evening in the Sunday school room of Plymouth Church for the benefit of the Western Branch of the Soldiers' Home at Leavenworth, Kan. Miss E. King made her debut as a vocalist and acquitted herself creditably. She sang "In Autumn" and "Rockaby Lullaby," a song written by her father. Mr. George Werrenrath sang "The Two Grenadiers," "The Song of the Camp" and "The Star Spangled Banner." Others who took part in the programme were Mr. T. L. Doyle, Mr. A. J. Fenwick, Miss Kitty Cavanagh and Mr. J. M. Pearsall.

SANGUINARY MR. COHEN.

Adolph Cohen, of 141 North Fourth street, charged Simon Cohen, of 191 Bedford avenue, before Justice Naeher this morning with threatening to strike him with a bottle and using the words, "I'll kill you." Adolph's better feeling gained the mastery and he withdrew the complaint, but Simon was sent to the Inebriates' Home on a charge of habitual drunkenness.

He claims that it was an accident.

Set Aside a Will.

Judge Cullen has rendered a decision annulling the deeds of conveyance from Josephine Husson to Thomas T. Husson. They were husband and wife and resided at East Jamaica. Years ago, when Mr. Husson was in financial trouble, he conveyed all his real estate in this city and Jamaica to his wife and the title remained in her name for a long time. In 1884 Mrs. Husson reconveyed the property to her husband, who then proceeded to make his will. He died soon after. The will gave very great dissatisfaction to the heirs. The widow was left barely enough to live on. A clause in the testament disinherited any child who should contest it. To get around this the dissatisfied children's counsel hit upon the novel plan of attacking the conveyances from Mrs. Husson to Mr. Husson, and suit was brought to annul the deeds on the ground that at the time of their execution and prior thereto and ever after Mrs. Husson was of unsound mind. When this suit came on for trial first Mrs. Husson was exhibited in court a speechless, foolish paralytic. She has since died. The effect of Judge Cullen's decision is to nullify Mr. Husson's will entirely. The deeds of the property which he bequeathed being null and void he was literally a pauper. After Mr. Husson acquired the property he sold several parcels and donated a site for a Reformed church at Hollis.

A BULL FIGHT

Which Edified a Very Large Crowd.

There Were No Toreadors on Hand, but the Animals Made Matters Lively Enough Without Them.

Pedestrians passing through Herkimer street, near Schenectady avenue, last evening imagined for a time that they had been silently lifted up by some fairy and set down in sunny Lisbon, the capital of Spain, while a bull fight was in progress. It is true there were no toreadors with their gleaming blades and gay, fluttering ribbons, but there was a bull fight all the same, and it was as desperate a fight as ever sprinkled hot blood over the arenas in the ancient city of the Moors. The crowd, too, embraced everybody in the neighborhood, including men, women, children and babies, and it took as much interest in the combat as though it had paid a high price of admission to see the show.

The two animals belonged to H. Bloch, a cattle dealer, of 150 Maujer street, and they were on their way from Flatbush to the slaughter house in Johnson avenue. One bull was big, with long, rakish horns, the other was small, with very short horns. Bloch and his men tried to separate the animals but could not succeed in their efforts, and the roaring of the infuriated beasts, the shouts of the drivers of the herd and the loud cries of the excited multitude, combined to make as big a hubbub as that locality has experienced for years. The people formed a big ring round the beasts. The latter attacked each other viciously and locked and interlocked their horns and probed them through each other's tough hides. Finally, the larger bull drove his horn deep in the smaller bull and the latter, with a roar of pain and rage, sank exhausted and was left in a dying condition by Bloch and his men, who continued their way to the slaughter house, driving the victorious bull ahead of them. Bloch was arrested this morning and taken before Justice Kenna on two complaints, one charging him with not having a permit to drive cattle through the streets and the other with cruelty to animals. Bloch pleaded guilty to the first charge and was fined $5. He will be tried on the other charge a week hence.

Stocks were quiet early this afternoon, and about the only feature was a rise in Richmond Terminal and in Erie. After 1 o'clock the movement was chiefly in the coal stocks, but gradually the whole market improved and the tone was strong between this hour and 2.

Stocks were generally strong in the late trade and at the close.

Money loaned at 5 per cent. and at 4, and closed about 4.

SAYS THEY ARE ABSOLUTELY FALSE.

A. L. Piddian Still Talking About His Austrian Bonds.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

Referring to your article in to-day's issue, entitled "A Bad Bargain," I can say nothing more about Mrs. Schneider's allegations than that they are absolutely false. But the bare assertion of Mr. Anthony Comstock that "the transaction represented by the Austrian bond was, on its face, an 'infamous swindle' as it called for about twice its face value," shows maliciousness on his part. Is it an "infamous swindle" to sell New York Chemical Bank stock for thirty times its face value? Or is it an "infamous swindle" to sell any of our local bonds and stocks for more than their face value? Had Mr. Anthony Comstock have said that we sell Austrian bonds for double their "marketable value," his assertion would not have been an "infamous swindle," but would have been an "infamous lie."

A FIGHT WITH INDIANS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 20.

A special from Clarksville, Tex., says: "A fatal shooting affray occurred yesterday at Wilson's Mill, about thirty miles north of here, between two half breeds named Wilson and two Indians from the Choctaw Nation. Both Indians were killed and one of the Wilsons was seriously wounded in the thigh."

INFANTILE AND BIRTH HUMORS SPEEDILY CURED BY CUTICURA.

For Cleansing the Skin and Scalp of Birth Humors, for allaying Itching, Burning and Inflammation, for curing the first symptoms of Eczema, Psoriasis, Milk Crust, Scald Head, Scrofula and other inherited skin and blood diseases, CUTICURA, the great Skin CURE, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, are infallible. Absolutely pure.

MY OLDEST CHILD,

Now six years of age, when an infant six months old, was attacked with a virulent, malignant skin disease. All ordinary remedies failing, we called our family physician, who attempted to cure it; but it spread with almost incredible rapidity, until the lower portion of the little fellow's person, from the middle of his back down to his knees, was one solid rash, ugly, painful, blotched and malicious. We had no rest at night, no peace by day. The physician did not know then, and does not know now, what it was. Finally, we were advised to try CUTICURA REMEDIES. Without the knowledge of our physician, I procured a box of CUTICURA and a cake of CUTICURA SOAP. The effect

WAS SIMPLY MARVELOUS.

Using the two together, first washing him thoroughly with CUTICURA SOAP, then anointing him with CUTICURA. From the first application a change for the better appeared. The doctor said we had no further need of him and ceased his visits. In three or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and healthy as though he had never been attacked. In my opinion, your valuable remedies saved his life, and to-day he is a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repetition of the disease having ever occurred. You are welcome to make any use of this you may deem best.
